- initial steps (marking centers) helpful.
- Actual placement of furniture may have been smoother, without steps.
- Furniture could be made to work w/ each other.
- Descriptions of C1 C2 etc could have been done before.

- "It's very homey that's what I like about it."
- It turned out very much the way I have my office set up at home. It's surprising the way things

- Trying to imagine "dream" is very difficult.
- Very helpful process.
- "I've done it on a piece of paper before but this is much better. (working with a model) You can actually see the room without anything in it.
- "It (the process) helps you think of actual places you had been in and how you would want this place to be. Most people don't have the skills to visualize things."

- Need round table - conf. discussion etc.
- Two boxy "chunky"
- "Process sounds very good but pieces don't come up to it."
- Not "serious" enough for most business offices.
- Seems o.k. for some of the "arty" professions
- Rolling chairs
- Very hard to dissociate yourself from what is there.

"Personally, I would go for a lot of this stuff but I can't see my office allowing it."

- Single running shelf.
- Pin up surface within reach from a sitting position.
- Under the shelf lighting.
- Some general lighting only.

"actually, I like the place I'm in." It's got everything the way I need to have it.
